WHY THE SANITARIUM SHOULD HAVE $35,000

From reports made by those who are soliciting subscriptions for the $35,000 building fund for the Benedictine Sanitarium it is evident that there is a widespread ignorance of the actual need of that institution and of the hospital needs of the city, which are constantly growing.

The Benedictine Sanitarium was established by the Sisters of St. Benedict some 12 years ago without making any appeal to the people of Kingston for aid. The Benedictine Sisters are a teaching order and conduct numerous schools. From the profits made in these schools, they took $35,000 and invested it in building the Sanitarium in Kingston. No one dollar of this $35,000 came from Kingston. The remainder of the money needed to build and equip the Sanitarium was contributed or raised by the Rev. Dr. R. L. Burtsett by private subscription, without any appeal being made to the public.

Except through the annual Charity Ball and other social affairs managed by the Ladies' Auxiliary to raise funds for the support of charity patients, the Sanitarium has never before appealed to the public for aid.

The Sisters of St. Benedict expected to build an addition to the Sanitarium. The original plans provided for this, the existing building being only the first unit in a comprehensive plan. Such an addition has been needed for several years, and the Sisters have hoped from year to year to be financially able to build it. They have not sufficient funds and there is no prospect that they will be able to build the addition without help.

For years Sisters have slept in the basement of the building and nurses have been herded in inadequate and uncomfortable quarters in the attic in order to make room for the sick. Even with this sacrifice on the part of the workers (for the Sisters work as well as pray) the wards are crowded beyond the limit set by the State Board of Charities and it is often impossible to find private rooms for paying patients.

Race, creed, color or social or financial position has never entered into the relations of the Sanitarium with its patients. In the past three years 62 per cent of the patients have been Protestants. There is a lack of red tape and cold-blooded institutionalism that has endeared the Sanitarium to all who have had relations with it.

Since the Sanitarium was built Kingston has spent $250,000 on four club houses; it has spent $400,000 on four schools; it has spent much more on other public and private improvements. But until the Kingston City Hospital erected its new $30,000 addition, which is just about sufficient to take care of its own overflow, the city had done nothing to increase its hospital facilities, although both institutions were crowded and inadequate.

Now, with $35,000 of the earnings of the Benedictine Sisters brought to Kingston and invested in a public charity, and with as much more raised among friends by private subscriptions invested in the same charity, the Sanitarium asks help from the people of Kingston for the first time. It asks that the people of Kingston invest $35,000—just about one-half the amount the present Sanitarium has cost others—in building a needed addition, so that a greater number of sick may be cared for and so that those who care for them may no longer be herded in cellar or attic in order to make room for the sick.

TABERNACLE WORK IS BEING DELAYED

Work on the Delaware avenue tabernacle in which will be held a six weeks evangelistic campaign this winter is being held up by the non-arrival of a carload of lumber to be used in the construction. This lumber has been shipped but has not been received and has been on the road the past twenty-two days. The framework of the tabernacle is practically completed and if the lumber had been received when expected the building would have already been enclosed.

The city below the West Shore railroad has been divided into cottage districts and a series of cottage prayer meetings will be held starting shortly. The plans are for holding these prayer services every Tuesday and Friday evening in addition to the regular prayer services Tuesday evenings in the churches.

The Rev. L. K. Peacock, the evangelist who will have charge of the services, is holding revival services at the present time at Fairfield, Iowa.

Mrs. Michaux Arrested.
Mrs. Ella Michaux, who conducts a hotel on the Saugerties Road, was arrested at the West Shore station Sunday night by Sheriff Shultis and Under-Sheriff Hornebeck on a bench warrant issued upon an indictment found by the October grand jury. She was released Sunday on $1,000 bail furnished by her husband. One of the charges against her is that of conducting a disorderly house.

$4,500,000 A DAY TO RUN GOVERNMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 4.—The "high cost of government" has become a stern reality, for it will take four and a half million dollars a day to run the United States service during the fiscal year, which begins July 1 next, according to the annual estimates sent to congress today by Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department. The estimates called for an expenditure of $1,654,819,654 for the year, an increase of $245,759,763 over last year's estimates and an increase of $57,197,458 over the appropriations made by the last session of congress.

The estimates showed clearly that the United States is making rapid progress toward the point where it will cost two billion dollars a year to meet the constantly increasing costs of government. Eleven departmental classifications under which the estimates were submitted showed increases over last year and only four items showed decreases.

Preparedness for war was the greatest item in the budget for next year. It demanded expenditures of more than $800,000,000 under direction of the war and navy departments, or about one-half of the total estimated expenditures of the government. The war department asked for more than $421,000,000 for land defense, and the navy department demanded upwards of $382,000,000 to continue the great naval program outlined by the last session of congress. Last year the war department spent $331,000,000, and the navy department $315,000,000, as the initial outlay for the new preparedness plans.

The department of agriculture asked for some $7,000,000 more than it spent last year; the interior department for some $4,000,000 more, the department of commerce for nearly $5,000,000 more, the department of justice, and the department of labor for about $1,000,000 each. Despite the diplomatic burdens of the European war the state department asked for only $6,000,000 as against $9,000,000 appropriated during the last session of congress. A slight decrease in the estimate for pensions which called for $155,000,000 as against $158,000,000 appropriated last year, was shown despite the recent increases in pension rates, and is due to the gradual dying off of the old soldiers.

Of the total of more than a billion and a half dollars the estimates calculate that $225,000,000 to be expended by the postoffice department. Upwards of $60,000,000 of the total will go into the sinking fund to care for the bonded debt of the country.

Among the larger miscellaneous items in the estimates, the interstate commerce commission asks for $3,500,000 for continuing the physical valuation of the railroads of the country.

A sharp cut in proposals for river and harbor improvements was indicated by estimates for river and harbor appropriations which called for expenditures of $32,128,000 as against $42,080,935 appropriated for the same projects by the last session of congress. The estimates gave little heed to new projects.

The Mississippi river came in for the lion's share of the proposed expenditures. The estimates provide some ten and a half millions. The estimates would allot $1,805,000 for improvement of the Missouri river. The Ohio river would get $5,000,000.

The estimates provided for work under continuing contracts on the following improvements authorized by the river and harbors act of 1916: Delaware river, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, Philadelphia to the sea $150,000; East River, New York $2,000,000; Hudson river, New York $375,000.

For continuing work on projects already under way and for maintenance: New York harbor, $250,500; Harlem river, New York, $250,000; Delaware river, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, $2,000,000; Great Lakes channel, Buffalo, Chicago and Duluth $284,000.

JUSTICE IS TRUE TEST OF CHARITY

Judge Cunningham Pronounces Eloquent Eulogy at Memorial Services of Kingston Lodge of Elks—Fine Musical Program Adds to Impressive Exercises.

The large assembly hall at the Elks' Lodge Building on Fair street was packed to the doors on Sunday afternoon, the occasion being the memorial service in honor of the departed Elks; a service such as is held wherever there is a lodge of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks the world over on the first Sunday in December. In addition to appropriate music and the memorial ritual, the eulogy was pronounced by the Hon. William D. Cunningham.

The order of exercises opened with the invocation, pronounced by Brother William P. Egan, which was followed by a selection played by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Conductor George H. Muller. Mendelssohn's "Allegretto" being played with smoothness, finish and feeling. The "Persian Garden Quartet" including Miss Hey, soprano; Miss Jacus, alto; Mr. LaTour, tenor; and Mr. Clearwater, bass, with Harry P. Dodge at the piano, then sang most impressively "Crossing the Bar" by Barrett. "The Lord is my Shepherd" was beautifully rendered by Miss Jacus and Mr. LaTour, after which Exalted Ruler James Jenkins led the officers and members in the impressive ritual of the memorial service, including the roll call of departed Elks, wherein is emphasized the triumph and exultation of death, rather than the spirit of gloom and despair. This was fittingly followed by another quartet number, "Weary Pilgrims Know no Fear," admirably sung.

Judge Cunningham was then introduced and began his eulogy by calling to mind the words of the philosopher-poet: "To live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die." After paying a man's tribute to those members of the lodge now departed, most of whom he had known and honored, Judge Cunningham said that after all the finest tribute which the living could pay to the memory of those who had gone ahead was for every one present to become an Elk. He was not himself a member of the organization nor did he mean the joining of some lodge, which was after all but the vehicle of expression of the principles which the order upheld. What he meant was that every one within the sound of his voice should honestly and earnestly determine in his or her own heart to live up to the principles of the order: Brotherhood, Justice, Charity, words so frequently and lightly used as to be quite too often abused. Had the "Brotherhood of Man" been a reality, not merely a fine phrase to cover more or less of selfishness, there could not today be the frightful bloodshed and human carnage that is destroying humanity in Europe. As to "Charity," that cardinal virtue, even here the speaker would not quite disclaim something of pessimism. In the face of our hospitals, our charity commissions, etc., it might seem to the casual thinker, that charity was everywhere. The speaker considered a great deal of such relief work philanthropic, which he held to be vastly different from charity. Were brotherhood genuine and charity real, there must be justice. We have not, in America, yet been really tried to the genuineness of our spirit of brotherhood, our charity and justice; in other words as to our patriotism. But there are among our deep thinkers of today, those who feel that such patriotism is at a low ebb in this land. Judge Cunningham prophesied that this land would surely, most surely be tested as to whether its boasted brotherhood, justice and charity were a pretense, a sham, or whether they are real, real in fortitude and deep self sacrifice. He declared that the crisis must come, and warned that that in the manner of our meeting that crisis will history write us down as standing or falling. The judge closed his telling address with these words:

"All the world in faith and hope may disagree; All mankind's hope is charity."

Mozart's dignified "Processional" was then played by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra. The closing ode (air, "Home, Sweet Home") was sung by the lodge and those present and the ceremonies were brought to a close with the pronouncing of the benediction by Brother J. I. Blair Larned, rector of St. John's Church.

SAID YOUNG GIRL ROBBED HIS STORE

This morning a ten year old girl, accompanied by her mother, appeared before Recorder Lang to answer to a complaint made by Abram Adin, who has a store on Meadow street. Mr. Adin said that when he went to his store Friday he found the girl in the building and she jumped out of a back window. The store door was locked and he had the key in his pocket, but entrance had been obtained from the rear. He said that an amount of money had been taken from the cash drawer. He identified the little girl as the one who had jumped out of the window. The girl denied the theft and told of another young girl who had an amount of money which she was using to buy presents for her girl friends. Recorder Lang warned the little girl that it paid not to steal for if caught she would be sent away. A further investigation will be made of the affair.

Hotel Opening a Success.
If the business done on Saturday night at the West Shore Hotel is any indication, that hostelry will have a very prosperous business under the management of J. S. Pessenar, who has renovated the building, formerly known as the Hotel Bauer. Both the cafe and grill did a flourishing business and the customers were well satisfied with the service. Maisenheider's orchestra furnished music. Mr. Pessenar formerly conducted the Avon Inn at Pine Hill and is an experienced hotel man. He will make a specialty of business men's lunches and Sunday dinners.

MUST NOT SOLICIT TRADE AT STATION

Henry A. Mauterstock Restrained From Operating Motor Bus on West Shore Property at Saugerties. Save Under Conditions Laid Down by Judge Hasbrouck.

Judge Hasbrouck has handed down his decision in the matter of The New York Central Railroad Company and Clinton Van Buskirk, plaintiffs, against Henry A. Mauterstock, defendant. The matter was presented to Judge Hasbrouck for trial without a jury on October 24, and the facts of the case as presented are briefly: Clinton Van Buskirk of the village of Saugerties, in consideration of a yearly sum of money, was given the right and privilege to solicit passengers for his bus line from the depot of the railroad company to the village of Saugerties, a distance of 3/4 of a mile. The defendant, Mauterstock, during the past two years when the business was at its height during the summer months, without a permission, entered the grounds of the railroad company and parked his vehicles there and went among the alighting passengers and solicited passengers for his conveyances. In this way much of the revenue of Mr. Van Buskirk found its way into other hands and his money loss was considerable.

No other means of law were at hand and unless an injunction was granted restraining Mr. Mauterstock from soliciting business the Van Buskirk business, which he was compelled to carry on in the lean as well as fat times of the year, would cease to be a profitable one. By his contract with the railroad Van Buskirk was compelled to conduct a stage not only when traffic was heavy but also when it was light and there was but little revenue.

In his findings Judge Hasbrouck sets forth:
1.—The plaintiff, the New York Central Railroad Company, has a legal right to enter into contract, giving to the plaintiff, Clinton Van Buskirk, the right to enjoy the exclusive privilege of standing his vehicles at the Saugerties station upon the railroad company's land and solicit business at said station from the passengers arriving upon trains at said station.

2.—The defendant, Henry A. Mauterstock, has and had no right at such station other than the right to transact business with the plaintiff railroad company, to bring passengers and their baggage, who had previously employed him, to such station and leave such passengers and their baggage there, and to come to such station for the purpose of meeting and taking therefrom persons who had previously employed him to do so.

3.—A contract with a boarding house keeper or other person who had no business relations with the plaintiff railroad company, could not and did not give the defendant, Mauterstock, any greater right than the right to bring passengers to the station and leave them there and to meet passengers, either by arrangement with them or with the boarding house keeper or other employee, who had requested the employer of Mauterstock to meet them and take them away.

4.—The defendant Mauterstock remaining at the station and going among the passengers and soliciting their patronage, was an invasion of the rights of the plaintiff which they are entitled to have enjoined.

5.—An injunction will be granted restraining the defendant, Henry A. Mauterstock, from going to or remaining at the Saugerties station of the West Shore railroad, upon the railroad company's grounds, for any other purpose than following:

1.—Transacting business with the plaintiff railroad company, its agents and servants.

2.—Going to the station to deliver intended passengers with their baggage at such station.

3.—Going to such station at about the time of the arrival of trains to meet such persons as shall have previously contracted with him to meet them at such station, and taking them therefrom.

4.—The plaintiffs are entitled to recover the costs and disbursements of this action.

Judgment in accordance with these findings ordered.
Attorney Amos Van Eiten appeared for the plaintiff, Clinton Van Buskirk and the New York Central Railroad.

"OLIVER OSBORNE" CAUGHT IN CHICAGO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Chicago, Dec. 4.—A little woman, nerve-racked and in a serious condition, tossed fretfully in her bed today while Charles H. Wax, flirtation king and the "Oliver Osborne" of the famous New York mystery case, laughed and exchanged jokes with reporters who visited his cell at headquarters.

She is Wax's wife. She was a St. Louis girl when he married her under the name of "Frank Burke," one of the many aliases the police allege he adopted in his country-wide forays on the hearts of girls and women whose savings he was said to have been attempting to obtain.

"Mrs. Burke" broke down in a fit of hysteria when word was brought to her that her husband had been arrested and had confessed he was the long-sought "Oliver Osborne," that he had wooed and betrayed pretty Rae Tanzer and had the foundation for her $50,000 breach of promise suit against James W. Osborne, former assistant district attorney of New York, whom she believed was the real "Oliver Osborne."

"I was an orphan when I met him," she sobbed. "He was so good to me. He may have done wrong in this one case but I can't believe it when they tell me he carried on flirtations with girls all over the country."

Wax was in his usual rare humor when he awoke today. "I'm willing to go back and face the music," he said. "I haven't done anything wrong and there is nothing they can send me to jail for. But I am really anxious to clear James W. Osborne's skirts of the Tanzer charges."

Wax probably will be taken back to New York today.

JEFFERSON LEAGUE MEETS TONIGHT

The Jeffersonian League of Ulster County, which was incorporated with the secretary of state last week and according to the articles of incorporation, organized to promote a feeling of good fellowship between the Democrats of Ulster county, will be fairly launched this evening when a meeting for the purpose of organization and discussion of future plans will be held at the office of Democratic State Committeeman William C. DeWitt on Fair street.

When Mr. DeWitt was asked as to the policy of his league, he said the organization was the outcome of a general feeling of good will between the Democrats of the county and a desire on the part of the party to form some kind of permanent organization in the city, where the members might come and meet their friends and continue the feeling of friendship which grew during the last few days of the recent campaign.

"During the last few days of the campaign the attendance at the Democratic headquarters was large, and in view of the feeling of friendship which existed, the Democrats of the county wished to form a permanent club where they might meet on friendly terms, and the Jeffersonian League is the outcome of that desire," said Mr. DeWitt.

When the organization is perfected and officers are elected a permanent club will be established in rooms similar to the organization carried on by the Republican party in the Republican club. A branch will be established in each end of the town so that the people of Rondout will have an equal chance with the up town people.

The plans, Mr. DeWitt said, are for a social as well as a political club. Small dues will be charged and all members of the party as well as any one who wishes to affiliate himself will be accepted into the club.

Until the formation of the Jeffersonian League there was no permanent Democratic organization in the city, but the enthusiasm shown at the Democratic headquarters during the past campaign, Mr. DeWitt thought, warranted a permanent organization, and thus was the new league formed. The meeting this evening will be to formulate plans for the future, and permanent officers will be elected later. The founders of the organization are: William C. DeWitt, Thomas J. Comerford and Rozcoe Irwin of Kingston, Joseph J. McGrath of Phoenixia, and Arthur V. Hornbeck of Ellenville, who are the directors of the corporation.

How to Carve a Turkey.

After the turkey is roasted trim drumsticks with paper ruffles, which will enable carver to touch them if necessary without soiling his hands. Place turkey on platter with the head at the left. Unless the platter is very large provide an extra dish, also a fork for serving.

First.—Insert the carving fork across the middle of the breastbone.
Second.—Cut through the skin between the breast and the thigh.
Third.—Bend the leg over and cut off close to the body and through the joint.
Fourth.—Cut through the top of the shoulder down through the wing joint.
Fifth.—Shave off the breast in thin slices, slanting from the front of the breastbone down toward the wing joint.
Sixth.—Carve only from the side nearest to you.
Seventh.—Tip the bird over slightly and with the point of the knife remove the oryster and the small dark portion found on the side bone.
Eighth.—Then remove the fork from the breast and divide the leg and the wing.
Ninth.—Cut through the skin between the body and breast and with a spoon remove a portion of the stuffing.
Tenth.—Serve light and dark meat and stuffing as preferred.

If carved in this way the turkey will be left with one-half entire and if placed on a clean platter, with the end side nearest the carver and garnished with parsley, will present nearly as fine an appearance to all but the carver as when first served. Where there are many to serve take off the leg and wing from each side and slice the whole of the breast before removing the fork, then divide as required.

Obesity Diet.

It is not the quantity of food, but the kinds of food eaten that fatten. This should be remembered when dieting to reduce flesh. "Semistarvation" as a means of reducing is not only weakening, but positively dangerous. The following diet list for the reduction of flesh is governed by common sense:

Foods permitted are clams, oysters, lobsters.

Soups without flour or fat thickening.
Lean meats (ham, pork and liver excepted).

Fish—fresh, salt or smoked, of any kind, but cooked without fat or butter.

Eggs in any style.

Chicken, duck, turkey, game.

Vegetables—squash, string beans, carrots, tomatoes, turnips, cabbage, peas, onions, asparagus, cauliflower, celery, salads, watercress, pickles of all kinds.

Gluten bread.

Water, coffee and tea (except with meals).

ARMOUR

GERMANS BATTLE FOR ROMANIAN CAPITAL.

Here is the Romanian Royal Palace at Bucharest, from which the royal family has fled, and which soon may fall into the hands of the invading Germans, possibly to be used as quarters for the staffs of Generals von Falkenhayn and von Mackensen, leaders of the German invading armies. The palace is magnificently furnished, but it is probable that the furnishings will be removed by the Rumanians if the fall of Bucharest appears unavoidable.

FLOWERS.

Miss Lolita Armour.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Miss Lolita Armour, daughter of the millionaire Chicago packer, once believed hopelessly crippled, is a debutante today, having made her debut amid a fortune of flowers. Miss Armour is a happy, charming brunette and doesn't show any sign of congenital lameness, which Dr. Lorenz, the noted Vienna expert, made two trips to the United States to cure when Miss Armour was a little girl. Miss Armour has been in the best of health since the bloodless operations performed by Dr. Lorenz. She recently wore khaki for a month in the women's training camp of the National Naval League. Miss Armour was colonel of the women's corps, slept in a tent through chill, rainy weather and endured discipline like a regular.

Benevolent Man's Advantage.

The benevolent has the advantage of the envious, even in this present life; for the envious is tormented not only by all the ill that befalls him, but by all the good that happens to another; whereas, the benevolent man is the latter prepared to bear his own calamities untroubled, from the complacency and serenity he has secured from contemplating the prosperity of all around him.—Colton.

Talk to Yourself.

A lawyer has in his office a motto: "Think twice before you speak; then, think to yourself." His significant comment upon it was: "If my clients for some time, I would lose half my business." He also remarked that the first lawyer in whose office he served taught him the important lesson to keep his mouth sealed on all occasions, when not absolutely necessary to open it.—Onward.

The Apartment Dweller.

To get all these benefits the apartment dweller is asked to surrender two desirable things, namely, inside room and outside air.—Minneapolis Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Heiderick of Brooklyn announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Eliza, to Howard Furman of Connolly.

Westbrook-Berryan.

Miss Jeannette Berryan and David V. Westbrook, both of this city, were married on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the parsonage of the Fair Street Reformed Church by the Rev. F. B. Sealey, pastor of the church. They were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Westbrook, after a southern trip, will make their home at No. 122 Fair street, Mr. Westbrook's old home.

Booth-Eck.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Hook on Spring street, Ellenville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday at noon, when their daughter, Mrs. Clara Eck, became the wife of Frederick Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Booth, Sr., of Ellenville. The Rev. H. H. Moser of the M. E. Church performed the marriage ceremony. The guests were the immediate families of both bride and groom. Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Booth. Mr. and Mrs. Booth are both highly esteemed young people of the village with a host of friends who extend to them very hearty congratulations. They are to reside at Bridgeport, Conn., where the groom has employment. A furnished home awaits the arrival of them after a wedding trip.

The Coterie.

The Coterie met on Saturday last, with Mrs. Terry, and spent the afternoon in the considering of "New Orleans, the Paris of America." Mrs. Kugman had the first paper for the day, her subject being, "The Creoles of Louisiana." This paper was for the most part historical, telling of the settling of New Orleans by the French about the middle of the eighteenth century. The union of French and Spanish blood resulted in the creation of a pleasure loving people, the Creoles, whose one aim in life seemed to be the pursuit of gaiety and happiness, which would not brook even the intervention of the Sabbath as a stay to their festivities. The importation of women from France, at first young women from reformatories, etc., and later from excellent families, was related. It was told how the latter groups of women brought with them, each her own casket or dowry. Today there are those in New Orleans who boast descent from these "Casket Girls." A fine description was given of the city of New Orleans of today, with its commingling of the quaint old days and modern up-to-dateness. Some exceedingly fine illustrations of the Mardi Gras were shown in illustration of New Orleans at its gayest. Mrs. Patchen had the second paper for the day, her topic being, "The Romance of New Orleans." This paper dealt more exclusively with the romantic life of the people from the days when Evangeline visited its city to this present day. It was interesting to note the Creole opinion of Evangeline and the Acadian people. In this paper it was brought to light that the beautiful Creole women were the superior of the men in intellect and enterprise. Both of these very interesting papers were appropriately followed by a reading from George W. Cable's "Old Creole Days," given by Mrs. Frank Thompson. Following a delightful social hour the club adjourned until December 16th, when the meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Watts on Highland avenue.

Supper at Katrine.

A supper will be served in the Grange Hall at Lake Katrine Friday evening of this week. This supper will be given by the Katrine neighborhood for the benefit of the Flatbush Church. The supper will consist of baked beans with catsup, cold meats, cabbage salad, brown and white bread (home made), cake and preserves.

Fisherman Banks Also a Trapper.

John Banks, the famous fisherman at Eddyville, has also acquired a title as a trapper of note. This morning he found a big racoon fast in one of his traps. The coon tipped the beam at 31 pounds, and is one of the largest caught in that vicinity in some time.

Speaking of pent up Enthusiasm. Lifting the lid, Letting up on the Safety valve, Joining the Hallelulah chorus, Throwing open The throttle, Advancing the Spark; Giving her more Juice, Making a Touchdown, Batting a homer, Hurrahing for a Good cause, To say nothing of Yelling, cheering, Hand clapping, Encores, etc., And a few Similar stunts, Yesterday's meeting Certainly broke the Halter and backed Out of the stall, Cut loose and Then some, for the Sanitarium Campaigners. The appeals of the Speeches were Eloquent because Of their directness And fervor. Men and women Vied with each Other to say their Say, and volunteer For work. One of the mottoes On the wall was "The only way to Get there Is to go to it." And they went To it, with an Enthusiasm That twisted two Rafter, bulged one Side wall and Made the welkin Ring. Who said Kingston Was Dutch and Consequently slow? All she needs is A self starter And this meeting Of campaigners Yesterday certainly Started things. It made the "I told you so Fellow" look Like 7 cents. It turned failure Into success. It Doubled the present Amount. It added Many workers and Now, Watch our smoke.

STRONG ARM SQUAD IS NOW COMPLETED

Chamber of Commerce Will Begin Great Drive a Week From Today—Luncheon Wednesday Noon and Banquet on Friday Night at Which Woodward and Wilson Will Speak.

One week from today the big drive for 500 new members in the Kingston Chamber of Commerce will begin. Announcement was made from headquarters this morning that more than a dozen prominent business men have volunteered to captain teams of nine men each for the big canvass, and a powerful strong-arm squad is about completed.

Approximately 700 business and professional men will be called upon by the fifteen teams—each team covering a district comprising about fifty prospects. The teams will start at 10 a. m. Monday, the 11th, and work two hours each morning for the first five days of the week.

This week will be devoted to meetings and conferences in preparation for the membership crusade. Wednesday noon, Lucius E. Wilson, former secretary of the Detroit board of commerce and new chief campaign director of the American City Bureau, will address the captains and "live wires" at a mid-day luncheon at the Eagle Hotel.

The Wednesday luncheon is usually called an "Information" luncheon for the reason that it is devoted very largely to a careful explanation of the plans and object of the campaign. It will begin at 12:15 and adjourn at 1:30. The price of the luncheon is fifty cents and it is a "Dutch treat."

The next and most important meeting of the whole movement will be the "For Kingston" dollar dinner at the Stuyvesant next Friday night. While the main feature of this dinner will be the talks of Roland B. Woodward, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, and of Lucius E. Wilson, the dinner will bring a party of business men from Middletown, headed by Mayor Thompson, and visitors also from Albany and Poughkeepsie.

TOTAL OF $10,000 PLEDGED BY NIGHT

Kingston People Alive to Needs of Sanitarium and Workers Swing Into Week's Campaign With Renewed Enthusiasm and Determination—Ladies' Auxiliary Pledges $8,000.

Sunday afternoon a mass meeting of the Daughters of Isabella, Sanitarium Auxiliary, Knights of Columbus and several interested citizens was held in the assembly room of K. of C. Club. Spontaneous speaking stirred the crowd to enthusiasm so that men doubled their subscriptions and women vied with one another to get on teams to help the cause. While the campaign has been lacking in workers and proper enthusiasm, this meeting showed that Kingstons are keenly alive to the needs of the sanitarium and the necessity of making the effort to raise $35,000 a gigantic success. Many speeches were made and two valuable points emphasized were the lack of workers up to the present time and the apparent apathy on the part of the public in meeting the situation with commensurate subscriptions to build an addition to the sanitarium. One speaker said some seemed to regard this as a giving to an annual ball or fete and tried to satisfy themselves with a few dollars.

This addition, when completed, is a permanent asset to the city of Kingston as well as to the sanitarium itself and in giving it should be borne in mind that an appeal of this kind will not have to be made again for at least a quarter of a century. Hence, people can afford to be generous in their donation for this permanent city asset. The raising of this money means a large revenue to the sanitarium which means less necessary subscriptions for charity work in coming year.

It was also pointed out that times with business men were exceptionally good, labor is plentiful, working conditions were never more satisfactory, hence a more propitious time for noble work of this character could never be conceived. Twenty-five additional volunteers to the teams were received and cards taken.

Just before the meeting broke up the Ladies' Auxiliary announced a subscription to be paid during the year of $3,000; at this announcement enthusiasm knew no bounds and it was the conviction of all present that while last week's work was inconceivably small the coming week would see the full fruition of the earnest efforts being put forward. This will mean money to build the addition, take the Sisters out of the basement, create rooms enough to increase revenue of the Sanitarium, properly house the nurses so that they can get a state certification, put in the building an elevator and an X-ray equipment, make the Sanitarium a building in capacity and equipment one of the very best outside of the city of New York.

The action taken by the Ladies' Auxiliary to raise $3,000, independent of the individual pledge of its members was on motion of Mrs. James F. Dwyer, first vice president, and was unanimous.

With this pledge and other subscription promised on Sunday the fund should reach the $10,000 mark by this evening.

Where She Lived.

The Baisley girl who was sent away to the Bedford reformatory on Saturday by Recorder Lang resided at No. 8 Post street and not at No. 2 Post street as was erroneously reported in Saturday's Freeman. The folks who live at No. 2 Post street are not the kind who get in jail or harbor persons of bad character.

Successful Musical Comedy Comes Here With Original Cast.

After a twelve months' run at the Princess and Casino Theatres in New York city and with the New York production intact, "Very Good Eddie" will come to Kingston for production at the Kingston Opera House for matinee and evening performances on Tuesday. The cast includes the names of many New York favorites and an unusually attractive and animated bevy of girls makes up the chorus. They have been named the "Swagger Fashion Girls," and they add considerably to the life and success of the musical comedy. No other musical comedy in recent years has had as many song hits as "Very Good Eddie," which was written by Philip Bartholomae and Guy Bolton, the lyrics by Schuler Green and music by Jerome Kern. The comedy is enriched by many amusing complications but through most unusual situations occur the story remains wholesome comic throughout and never borders on vulgarity.

COAL BOAT SINKS IN CREEK SUNDAY

Sunday one of the coal boats of the North River Coal Company loaded with grate coal sprung a leak and sunk at its moorings off the Island Dock in the Rondout creek.

All that was visible of the boat today was the cabin and a part of the cargo. No one was on board the boat when it filled and sunk. The tug Rob expected to make an effort to raise the sunken boat this afternoon if the tide dropped low enough. The tug was armed with a big pump on the bow and an effort would be made to pump the coal boat free of water.

COL. GORDON JOHNSTON
COMMANDER OF 12TH REGIMENT
WHO RESIGNED WITH STAFF.

Colonel Gordon Johnston, a regular army officer, serving as colonel of the 12th New York Volunteer Infantry Regiment, has tendered his resignation from the command. Resignations have also been presented by the other officers of the regiment. The cause is an alleged affront by Major-General John F. O'Riordan, in command of the New York Division. He is said to have humiliated the Twelfth by causing it to pass twice in review before United States Senator James W. Wadsworth because the standards were faulty. General O'Riordan denies any insult was intended.

While Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the local health officer, was attending the dance at the assembly on Thanksgiving Day night he left his automobile standing in front of the building. Mystery of Chimney Swift.

The chimney swift furnishes one of the unsolved problems of bird life. The birds drift slowly south until on the northern coast of the Gulf of Mexico they become an innumerable host. Then they disappear and for five months their hiding place is a mystery.

Many Birds Imported.

The department of agriculture issues about 200 permits annually for the importation of birds; the number of birds imported amounts to about 14,000, and as many as 17,000 birds arrive in a single day.

EASTERN STAR HAS BIG NIGHT

Saturday evening was a big night for Kingston Chapter, No. 155, Order of the Eastern Star, at Masonic Hall, Strand and Broadway, when the Queen of the South degree was conferred on Mrs. Laura T. Allenton of Cairo, N. Y., the present district deputy grand matron, Mrs. Lillian B. S. Huhne, Mrs. Mary K. Comstock and Mrs. Kate Eastman, all past district deputy grand matrons, and Mrs. Irene S. Holstein, worthy matron of Kingston Chapter. The degree team of Vassar Chapter of Poughkeepsie had charge of the work which was impressive and beautiful. Over three hundred were present during the evening from this city, Saugerties, Catskill, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Jersey City and other places. During the evening solos were rendered by William Williams assisted by the Eastern Star quartet, Mrs. John Osterhout, Mrs. Clarence Hendricks, Dr. C. H. Bishop and Carl Pierson. Following the degree work refreshments were served. The meeting was one of the most enjoyable held by the local order.

St. John's Church News.

This promises to be one of the busiest and most worth while weeks that St. John's Episcopal Church has known in years. Besides the customary activities of the church, the Every Member Canvass will reach its culmination on Sunday next, and an exceptionally fine musical entertainment for the benefit of the church will be given by the organist, Harry P. Dodge and a mixed quartet on Wednesday evening. The program for the week will be as follows:

Monday evening—At eight o'clock, all of the members of the Every Member Canvass Committee will meet at the home of the chairman of the committee, C. V. A. Decker, on Albany avenue. There are several details of the canvass to be considered at tonight's meeting and a full attendance is expected.

Tuesday afternoon—The regular meeting of the Altar Guild will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the parish house.

Wednesday evening—Musical evening at the parish house, which will include a miscellaneous program, followed by the presentation of "In A Persian Garden." The performers will be Miss Hey, soprano; Miss Jacus, alto; Herman LaTour, tenor; Harry Clearwater, baritone; Harry P. Dodge, pianist. Tickets may be purchased from Mr. Dodge, the members of the choir of the church or at the parish house on Wednesday evening.

Thursday evening—At 7:30 o'clock on Thursday evening, all of the men working in the Every Member Canvass will be given a fine dinner at the parish house, the dinner being served by the women of the church. It is a matter for congratulation that H. F. Laflamme, the secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which has become such a power in the land today, has been secured by the rector, to speak to the men on Thursday evening. He is a most enthusiastic and able speaker, and will have a live message for the men.

Friday evening—Special meeting of the Kijikuit Club at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. C. N. Reed.

Sunday, which will go on the records of the church as the first "Every Member Canvass Sunday."—Early celebration of the Holy Communion, 7:30 a. m. Second and special celebration of the Holy Communion, attended by the canvass men in a body, and it is hoped by every member of the church, at 10:30 o'clock, at which service the rector, the Rev. J. I. Blair Learned will preach a special sermon. Directly following this service the men actively engaged in the canvass will be served with luncheon in the parish house, leaving not later than 2 o'clock for the afternoon visitation of every member of the parish. The canvass will be carried on between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m., and all parishioners are asked to be at home between those hours, when they will be called upon. There will be no Sunday school and the evening service will be held at 8 instead of 7:30 o'clock in order that all of the canvassers may have ample time to bring in reports.

Randon Presbyterian Church Notes.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered next Sunday morning and new members will be received at that time. Preparatory services and sermon will be held Thursday evening. At the close of the service there will be a meeting of the session to receive new members.

The union service next Sunday will be held in the Presbyterian Church and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. A. K. Fuller of the Baptist Church.

The Tiger Patrol of Boy Scouts will meet in the chapel on Friday evening.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society will be held on Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Grove Webster on East Chestnut street. Papers will be read by Miss Georgia Doudner, Mrs. James E. Parry and Mrs. C. G. Ellis. There will also be music.

Supervisors' Association to Meet.

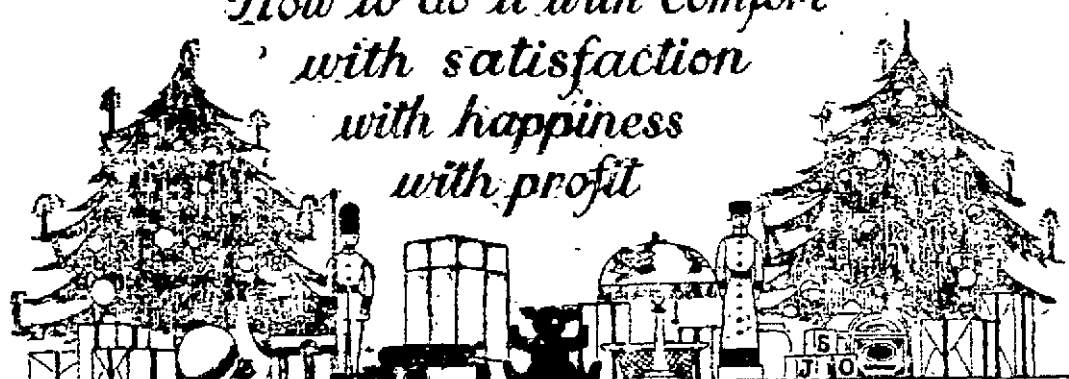

There will be a meeting of the Ulster County Supervisors' Association, which was organized last year, at the court house on Wednesday evening, December 5, at 8:30. Arrangements will probably be made at this time for a banquet to be held later.

Captain Meagher to Speak.

At the regular meeting tonight of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, Captain Frank L. Meagher of Company M, will address the members on "Military Training." An interesting discourse on a live topic is anticipated.

EVERYBODY'S CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

How to do it with comfort with satisfaction with happiness
with profit

We must begin with our thoughts. Close our eyes. Turn back the years. Live a moment in Memory's Garden.

Um-m—that glistening Christmas tree in the corner of the front room, its lights and color and tinsel. . . . The days of suspense—long before Christmas came. The whisperings. The attempts at secrecy. The mysterious packages, half-hidden under father's or mother's coat; packages rushed up stairs and locked in bureau drawers; how I tiptoed around and stealthily tried to open them! The talk of Santa Claus! Of his coming in his reindeer sleigh. His jolly round face was always before me, awake or dreaming. . . . And then—"the night before Christmas, when all through the house not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse"—the hurried supper, the bundling off to bed, the sleepless hours. . . . Finally the dawn—jumping out of our cribs—pattering down the stairs—and—um-m. . . .

We are ready now to go on with our story: How to do one's Christmas shopping with comfort, with satisfaction, with profit and with happiness. Our hearts have the Christmas spirit, so we may begin.

But how shall we begin?

Well, let's agree to start out unhurriedly, quietly, doing a little at a time.

But let us begin tomorrow. Christmas is only three weeks away.

Don't plan—yet.

Don't sit down in the loneliness of your room and try to make lists.

That will never do.

Put on your hat and coat and come downtown to the stores.

Leave your pocketbook at home. This is only a scouting trip; to see, to get a bird's-eye view of Christmas goods, to start one's ideas a-bubbling, one's heart a-thumping.

Go all over the stores—both buildings.

Start early, if you can, but if it's near twelve when you arrive take a cup of tea and a light luncheon in the homey restaurant on the Fifth Gallery.

Enjoy the pictures there before you start down stairs.

Now—come on—down a few steps, and we are in a great huge store of housekeeping things—electric coffee percolators, teapots, chafing dishes, sewing machines with electric motors to run them, fancy baskets, kitchen utensils, cutlery, tool boxes—and a thousand other things to make home-work easier.

Nearby are trunks and grips and bags and suit cases much given at Christmas.

And office furniture and fittings sensible gifts for men.

In a corner is the Golf Shop suggesting a 20-lesson ticket for some friend; and around it the Sporting Goods Store—always a magnet for boys, and many men.

On the floors below fifth and sixth galleries furniture and bedding.

Rows and rows of small gift furniture: sewing tables, gate-leg tables, cabinets, chairs, desks, trays—all standing up as proud as peacocks to be admired.

And bedding—what would be a better gift to give some one than a year of dreamless nights—on the right kind of mattress!

We stop for a moment in the House Palatial. . . . But sounds of revelry by day are coming up the big Rotunda, lights are flashing, children's laughter is heard, yes, it must be—we are near—a few steps down, to the Fourth floor—

Yes, it is Starland, the Christmas Store in the big Toy World.

"I used to think that Santa Claus lived up in the clouds," I exclaim, "among the stars, and here I find him in Starland, with stacks and stacks of toys and games and dolls. Rickety-crickety, there they go, the Old Woman who lived in a shoe, Humpty-Dumpty, Little Jack Horner—all our old friends. Stars flash, moons rock. Animals nod and show their teeth. Trains whirr. Music plays— Let me get away—quickly—or I will spend all my day here."

Well, there are other days. And as this is only scouting day we hurry on.

Down through the upholsteries, the blankets and quilts; the linens; the china and glass and lamps; the art wares.

Linger as long as we can among the wonderful gifts from the Orient—jade and rock crystals, pottery; beautiful and rare gifts from China and Japan.

Music lures us on.

The big organ is playing.

Caruso is singing—in the wonderful Victrola.

"As sure as I live there is a big Victrola in the Rotunda and not only the voice but a real living person comes out of it."

"But the pianos, the pianos! I never saw so many. Rows and rows of them, among the Venetian and old English glass and other amazing novelties in porcelain, needlework, painted furniture; and among the distinguished collection of antiquities assembled during the year in England, France, Spain and Italy.

The same privilege of partial payment applies also to Victrolas.

"Through the open door of the Auditorium I see—yes, it is an exhibition of rugs. The stage is gorgeously set. Rugs hang all around the Gallery and covering the floor. It is the Christmas Exhibition of rugs. How artistic to have it in this big hall."

Too soon we reach the street floor of the New Building, urged on by time alone and not by desire.

The Men's floor. Men's gifts cluster around the Burlington Arcade and the London Shop. Clothing, shoes, fur coats, motor robes, hats, fur-lined gloves, umbrellas, canes, hosiery and underwear, sweaters, smoking coats, bath robes, shirts, neckties—"well, I'm coming back here, you may be sure, for those gifts to Father and Brother."

Handy by there is boys' clothing too.

Shall we go downstairs further—or cross the street to the Old Building? Upstairs we just resisted crossing the Bridge of Progress on almost every floor, because we wanted to see all of the New Building first.

We can resist no longer. We know that the old Stewart building is just crammed full of things that catch a woman's heart—so we dash between the scores of motors lining Ninth Street and darting to and fro.

And we are in the center of a glorified Christmas Store. Tapestries, old vestments, altar cloths, candles, old lanterns, Italian wood-carvings, faded looking flags, all look down upon us from the galleries 'round the Rotunda.

A chorus is singing carols. A pipe organ is accompanying.

Everywhere is color. And art. And life. People are smiling, though bustling around, busily shopping.

Surely, here is the Christmas spirit, and Christmas service humanized.

"To the top floor," I tell the elevator man in his new uniform; yes, he, too, is smiling.

"Au Quatrième"—how much I have heard of that wonderful floor.

Now I am to revel in it.

I walk down that fascinating tiled street, with its cunning shops. Wander into them, among the Venetian and old English glass and other amazing novelties in porcelain, needlework, painted furniture; and among the distinguished collection of antiquities assembled during the year in England, France, Spain and Italy.

"Gift-Plan Bureau" reads a sign. What is that?

It is a new Christmas service to prevent misfit gifts.

Give the Bureau names and addresses of friends or relatives to whom you want to make gifts. The Bureau then writes to them, asks for the information, but keeping your name secret.

"What a good plan! I often wanted to ask such questions; but didn't dare, because I knew it would give away all my secrets. Now you ask them for me. How nice!"

Yes, and when the information comes back, we notify you and you know just what to give.

"Well, that certainly simplifies Christmas shopping. But I am going on just the same through your big Store. I want the pleasure, too, the pleasure of seeing and picking out gifts."

Whole walls lined with books. Tables stacked with books. Columns swimming in books.

And calendars and cards—how attractive they are!

Down the majestic gray-carpeted steps of the Rotunda we walk, as in a dream.

We pause a moment to get a view of the main floor. It is full of Christmas inspiration.

The Jewelry Store in the Grace Church corner. Its glowing cases glistening with gold and diamonds and other precious stones. Flanked with its flashing Courts of Silver.

The leather goods, the hand bags of varied colors, the toilet goods and perfumes, the gloves, the umbrellas, the neckwear, the handkerchiefs, the silken hosiery and underwear, the fans, the ribbons, the Rotunda of luxurious colorful silks. The slippers and fancy shoes. The opera glasses, microscopes and sun dials. The clocks. The stationery. I can see everything from these steps—a gorgeous Christmas panorama of gifts.

"A box of candy, why, yes, thank you, oh joy! it is the famous Camee candy I love so much. So this is the home of Camee—well, well!"

"I am pretty tired by this time—for one day. But I might as well finish the tour—your Down-Stairs Store is below, is it not?"

Yes, the Down-Stairs Store occupies the two lower floors, two city blocks, connected by two passageways. Almost every kind of merchandise sold upstairs is sold downstairs, but a little less fine in grade and at lower prices, of course. Just now some Christmas upstairs stocks overflow into the Down-Stairs Store, but that makes the Store only the more fascinating.

"Yes, I have shopped in your Down-Stairs Store. I like its quiet atmosphere, in such good taste. I have always found its qualities reliable. And its prices are very moderate. I should think it would be immensely popular at Christmas."

A bugle blows.

"What is that?"

"Six o'clock! The whole day gone. I must hurry home. Why here is the Subway entrance, how handy. Good-bye."

Good-bye. Come back whenever you can.

"Surely! I know where to do my Christmas shopping."

How will all this help ME, some one asks, help me to do MY Christmas shopping—satisfactorily and happily?

Do as this woman did with the writer.

Make your own scouting trip. Then do a little planning.

Make out a list of the relatives or friends you wish to remember on Christmas.

Put yourself in the place of each one. For the moment imagine that you are Mary or Helen or Jim or Sam.

Put down under each name some of the things you saw at Wanamaker's that you would like to have were you the person you wish to favor.

Now you are ready to begin your Christmas shopping.

Don't try to do everything in one day.

Come to the store again, again and again.

If you select everything on one trip, some gifts are bound to be misfits. You will be tire' out. You will finish too early. When others are having the fun of shopping a week or two before Christmas you will be sitting at home—lonely, waiting. The Christmas Spirit will have grown cold. You will begin to wonder if it were all worth while.

No, don't go too fast. Don't finish too early. There will be plenty of gift merchandise in these stores, even up to Christmas Eve. There will be plenty of salespeople to serve you well. Japanese Claim Credit for Fan.

Japan takes credit for the folding fan. The original kind was of the palm-leaf variety—an oval or round shape which could not be folded. But Japan conceived the idea, just when or how nobody knows, of fastening half a circle of paper on a frame made of sticks fastened together at one end—and the collapsible fan resulted.

Fireweed's Good Work.

Fireweed, otherwise known as the "great willow-herb," seems to have been created as an antidote for one of the ugliest sights a landscape may offer—burnt-over ground. The fireweed is a genuine cosmopolitan, for it sends its consoling shaft above the ashes of burnt forests not only throughout America but in Europe and Asia.

To Keep Plants Fresh.

There is a simple way to water ferns and flowers which will be of interest to one who must leave them for a time without care. Take a washing tub and place three or four bricks in it and put about two inches of water in the tub. Place the flowers on these bricks and place the tub where they can get the morning sunshine.

Candy Vies With Tobacco.

Now comes the report of a Massachusetts woman who is ninety-nine years old and has eaten candy all her life. This seems a genuine record. We have often wondered why some other trade did not get in a few claims with these centenarians, instead of letting the tobacco people take all the honors.—Providence Journal.

VELOCK'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Jack Velock.)

International News Sports Editor. New York, Dec. 4.—Minor league baseball magnates are fast losing their appetites for exhibition games with major league teams on their annual spring junketing trips. Time was when the coming of a major league ball club to a town in the rural districts of baseball was heralded as a gala event by the minor league owner. But the exhibition stuff doesn't sit well on his palate now. The fans in the minor circuits are still willing to spend their loose shakels to watch the big fellows cavort about their sand lots, but these same fans can live just as happily without exhibition games, and the small league club owner will profit in the long run.

When the National Association met recently in New Orleans there was an undercurrent of sentiment expressed against exhibition games, and although the subject was not discussed in open meeting, the writer discovered that it was general, especially among minor league club owners in sections where most of the big league teams do their training.

Al T. Baum, who does the presiding spit for the Pacific Coast League, was perhaps the most willing of all the minor leaguers to talk on the subject. Baum's league put on the crusher on the exhibition idea in the winter of 1915 and according to the genial Al, his club owners will maintain their stand when they hold their 1916 meeting.

The coast league is largely a California organization, and, although California is ever willing to extend the heartiest of welcomes to visiting major league clubs, the owners of teams in the coast league have found that the invaders do more to harm than to boost their business.

"It is a matter of self-preservation," said Baum at the New Orleans meeting.

"We do not mean to be inhospitable, but we have to look out for the Pacific Coast League first, last and all the time. In years when major league teams visited our section of the country to train and play exhibition games in our cities, we found that much of the glamour was taken from the opening of our season."

"The fans flocked to the ball parks to see the big fellows in action, and if our teams failed to make a good showing against them the interest began to lag before we had a chance to ring up the curtain."

"As you know, we play a longer schedule than any other league in the country, and it is easy to see that when the baseball public gets a line on the various teams from the strength they show in exhibition games against the same major league outfits the edge of their interest before we open our gates."

This opinion seems to be gaining a foothold among all minor league club owners, and in this period of reconstruction among the minors it is only natural that they leave no stone unturned to help them recoup their losses of the past three or four years.

Many prominent baseball men believe that it is only a question of time until the exhibition game will become a moss-covered relic of the past and with the minors gaining confidence in their organization and its power to do things the outlook for the exhibition stuff is far from brilliant.
